Cooper B-Line are supplying their market leading Access Rack to the NYSE on both sides of the Atlantic. Having won the contract for Datacentres in the US and UK, B-line are supplying 52U high Access racks with enhanced cable management functions. The racks are supplied in 'Special Pod Units' and all feature the 'High-flow' curved perforated door. As well as delivering the racks to the sites Cooper B-Line provided an installation and commissioning service.

As part of the installation the 'i-ACS' system is also being deployed (Cold Aisle Containment System). By using this system the Cold Aisle in a Hot Aisle Cold Aisle configuration can be contained. This form of containment eliminates hot and cold air mixing within the datacentre helping to deliver cold air to the racks, thus improving cooling efficiency.

The positioning of the racks in both datacenters allows the retro-fit of the i-ACS system at a later stage if required.

Cooper B-line are also providing the i-ACE system within the NYSE datacenters. This closed loop access cabinet configuration provides N+1 cooling duty of up to 20kw per cabinet.

History

The New York Stock Exchange traces its origins to 1792, when 24 New York City stockbrokers and merchants signed the Buttonwood Agreement. This agreement set in motion the NYSE's unwavering commitment to investors and issuers.

Now NYSE Euronext welcomes the historic American Stock Exchange into the world's largest and most liquid exchange group.

Originally called the "curb market" because its brokers traded outdoors in the street, the Amex has been at the forefront of the U.S. financial markets over the course of two centuries.
